A PROCLAMATION

Believing that the campaign to raise $150,000 for a greater Young Women's Christian Association building for litebimond is but the fulfillment of a civic necessity, and that the success of such a movement is for the enhancement of the best interests of the city and for the general good, I urge upon the citizens of Richmond that they respond with such generosity to the present appeal for funds as will insure the success of this truly great undertaking and secure to Richmond an enduring monument, at once creditable to her philianthropy and useful to her posterity.

NOTE NAMED FOR

Business Men to Hold Monster Meeting at City Auditorium on January o.

ALL ORGANIZATIONS IN LINE

Program and Other Features to Be Arranged by Special Committees.

Tuesday night. January 9, 1912, is the date decided upon for the big demonstration which is being arranged by committees appointed for the purpose from the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's Club, Richmond Retail Merchants' Association, Travelers' Protective Association, United Commercial Travelers' Association, Richmond Advertisers' Club and the South Richmond Business Men's Club.

Club.

A joint meeting of the ways and means committee, parade committee and program committee was held at the Business Men's Club rooms yesterday, and was presided over by General Chairman T. M. Carrington. A thorough organization was effected and the committees went actively to work on the details necessary to carry out what is probably one of the most unique and up-to-date civic movements ever attempted by any city in the country the size of Richmond.

The plan contemplates a big parade

The plan contemplates a big parade y the members of the seven organiza-ons named, from the City Hall to the ity Auditorium. Mayor Richardson City Auditorium. Mayor Richardson and a special committee from the City Council and Board of Aldermen will be invited to participate.

An entertaining program is being arranged for the meeting at the Audi-torium, to which citizens, men, wo-men and children, will be invited.

With bands playing, banners flying and the streets illuminated by colored ights, carried by the paraders and displayed from the stores and residences along the route, the combined dences along the route, the combined business forces of Greater Richmond will proudly march, animated by a spirit of co-operation and the determ-ination to "pull together for 1912."

Movement for Everybody.

Movement for Everybody.

As Business Manager Dabney, of the Chamber of Commerce, expresses it: "This is everybody's movement, for everybody is directly or indirectly interested in the welfare of our great city and this everybody's movement is merely an expression of the spirit of co-operation and power whereby the citizens of Richmond can accomplish any good thing they wish. When the business organizations and the municipal authorities of a great city co-operate, as they do in Richmond, there's nothing within, reason that cannot be accomplished. A great spirit of enterprise and progress is at work among all our people, and this everybody's movement will be not only inspiring, but educational in its effect on all who take part and all who witness the spectacle."

The Times sall Bispatch

Only two days, and $30,000 still to be raised! That is the task, and that is the period set before Richmond to-day. If it were not for courage and character and past regords of Richmond, under greater dichities, those thirty thousand dollars might perhaps dishearten the less hopeful members of the Y. W. C. A. Campaign Committee.

But citizens of Richmond are not easily deterred. They have done far more dieuit things than raising a few tens of thousands, of dollars, and because the citizens have been men and women of large-hearted action, the city has the spirit that makes it great to-day. That spirit is a glylous heritage! It is worth more than money or commerce or mere numbers. It is the most priceless of all possessions, for it is the very life of this city! To keep that spirit; to foster and develop it; to callarge its powers and strengthen its hold, is no light task, for it is never easy to be great! Greatness is the faithful reward of high effort.

And to be great means to be al-fort.

And to be great means to be always striving. That is what so many overlook. This campaign, for example, is not a mere grabbing of example. money for a worthy purpose; it is an opportunity for the citizens of Richmond to ally themselves with a movement—indeed, with a life—that is greater than any individual. The man that helps gets power; the man that refuses to make the effort of giving loses an opportunity that is gone forever—and that loss is gone forever—and that loss means a crippling of his own personality.

It is not a question now of whether or not the young women of this city shall have this or that sort of a building or location; it is a question of whether two hundred men and women shall work for twelve days and secure some two thousand the hundred subscriptions, only to fall in the end.

The spirit of Richmond is on trial. That trial may be hard, but the realized thought is worth the effort. Here is how Bergson views the effect of effort on character:

"This effort is painful; it may be very pulnful; and yet, whilst making it, we feel that it is as precious as, and perhaps more precious than, the work it results in; because, thanks to it, we have drawn from ourselver, not only all that was there, but more than was there; we have raised ourselves above ourselves."

That is the sort of progress that Richmond must continue to make.

The members are now as follows:
Senator Don P. Halsey, of Lynchburg;
Senator E. C. Folkes, of Richmond,

the committee went deeply into the financial affairs of the State, glving to the public facts theretofore kept in secret, such as the borrowing of unknown.

Looking up the records yesterday, it was found that the pardon was issued on the recommendation of the trial justice, because of the illness of the woman, which would soon have resulted inevitably in considerable expense and the addition of another life to the care of the authorities. More than half of the term had expired.

CHANGE CHARTER LAWS

Provisions for Amendments Found to Be Conflicting.

Among the laws which will possibly be advocated in the Legislature is one to unify the various statutes governing the amendments to charters. The existing corporation law has chapters devoted to different classes of charters, and each provides slightly different procedure in getting amendments. This was evidently an oversight, since there appears no reason why the method should not be the same in all instances.

Probably a general section covering the proposition will be presented to the Legislature, after striking out all the others.

Sum needed to make the proposed Young Women's Christian Association will find in Richmond, drawing illustrations from similar work being done by the unitiation as reality, $150,000.

Amount still required to be raised, $23,130.

These are the salient facts in the grampaign ever waged in the city of Richmond, Behind these simple figure mitting toil by public-spirited men and women, of thousands upon thousands of calls upon citizens in every walk of all fife; of occasional rebuffs and even cold indifference, and yet of a single-network of publics. When the case of purpose and steady persever ance which augurs well for the final outcome. Only the small, Spartan be bands that have climbed endicess flights of stairs, pulled at innumerable doorbells and been whisked up countless cleavators will ever know just how much labor of body, heart and mind was necessary before the satiely home for women rose against the sky line.

Only Two Days More.

Two days—forty-eight hours—remain in which to raise $32,000. An impossible task, apparently, when it is considered that the twelve days during which the campaign has run have yielded the campaign have a pocular habit of coming the proposed to the committee.

Totals ... $11,479 $20,840 $2,800 $2,800 $2, rich in men of wealth and women of noble impulses.

Practically every element of the city's population has given the movement the imprint of its approval. The pulpit and the press have thrown their influence and prestige into the campaign lavishiy. Business, big and small, is united in acclaiming the institution as necessary to the best civic development. The city government itself has spoken, and through its chief, Mayor Richardson, has issued a stirring proclamation, calling upon the loyal citizenship of the city to rally to the cause.

The mute figures on the large bulletin board in the old Young Men's Christian Association building tell an interesting tale to those who venture to read between the lines. They show that up to the noon hour 2,346 of Richmond's 127,000 and more souls have inscribed their names on the roll of honor with a subscription of greater or smaller magnitude. Barely 2 per cent, of the city's population has so far comhonor with a subscription of greater or smaller magnitude. Barely 2 per cent, of the city's population has so far contributed to a cause which will directly or indirectly benefit every being within Richmond's corporate limits. With such a large portion of the citizenship still unheard from, the committees have taken new heart, and will enter upon the two days that still remain of the campaign with new spirit and encouragement.

G. M. Cook, in a letter, deplores this fact, but promises that the tribute will be on hand within a few days.

The Indians do not know the origin of this custom, since it dates probably from colonial days. It is presumed to be a part of some ancient treaty. They will not accept thanks and refuse to allow the game to be regarded as a present. They are merely, they say, paying their just dues to the White Father.

Women Work Hardest.

An interesting sidelight on the work of the men's and women's committees in the present campaign is the fact that the women have the act that the women have been maller it is far smaller, it is seen from these digures that while the subscriptions obtained by the women have been smaller in on an average than those obtained by the men, the women have more than the made up this deficiency.
